

Watch out for trout

From November to June, brown trout and Atlantic salmon are laying eggs which hatch into young fry in this chalk stream. Their eggs are hidden in nests (or 'redds') on the gravelly stream bed.

You and your dog can help to ensure a successful breeding season for these iconic species. Staying out of the stream will keep their eggs safe until hatching time.

Thank you for helping to protect our chalk stream fish!

Watch out for trout

From November to June, brown trout and Atlantic salmon are laying eggs which hatch into young fry in this chalk stream. Their eggs are hidden in nests (or 'redds') on the gravelly stream bed.

You can help to ensure a successful breeding season for these iconic species. Look for lighter-coloured patches of gravel, and avoid disturbing them with your feet.

Thank you for helping to protect our chalk stream fish!

